

Dear Madam/Sir,

I was alarmed to receive a notice from my independent ISP regarding the petition from Bell South (and other big teltelecommunication companies) towards deregulation of broadband services.

I believe this is a horrible idea, with the sole purpose of raising competition barriers and in no interest at all to consumers, who your agency is supposed to protect.

My ISP is offering me a very good service, but also they are offering more customised and specialised solutions, which would be lost in a large user-base based offering that the big telcos provide.

I 'd like to state my total opposition towards this new move by the big teltelecommunication companies, I believe it will be a bad development for the industry and consumers alike.

Yours sincerely,

Michael Masouras
